

8th POCITY FILM FESTIVAL Prešov, 10-15. October 2017. <http://www.po-city.sk/>

We drove to Pocity Film Festival from Budapest. We noticed the change in the style of driving as soon as we crossed the border, it was much smoother (probably because of heavy fines for people that don't stick to the rules of the road). Checking in was also unproblematic despite our late arrival. The next day we could sleep in, as there were no programmes until 4 pm. We couldn't really do much in the city except eat, as not much is open in Prešov on the weekend except bars and restaurants. We went to the Cinema where the Film Festival was held and discovered that there was Pocity Festival Beer for sale, but we sampled the home brewed borovička instead. We sat in for 2 hours of short films from local youth. Then we headed over to Cristiania (a bar where the BuSho selection was screened) and prepared for the screening by putting catalogues on the table and discussing what I will be saying to the audience with an interpreter. There was almost full house at the BuSho screening, and in the short break I was approached by local youth who were eager to learn about BuSho and our selection process. The screening ended at midnight, yet there were still some diehard short film fans hanging on. We sang a farewell song to our hosts and then we headed home to our hotel as we had to leave early the next morning. Dziki, Ahoj!

<https://www.facebook.com/pocityfilmfestival/>

